

Democratic Republic of Congo Communications shares 5G base stations

Overview

Will Vodacom & Orange bridging the digital divide in the DRC?

It may encourage other operators to adopt sustainable and inclusive practices. Overall, the Vodacom and Orange JV could be a definitive step toward bridging the digital divide in the DRC and beyond. In a strategic move to bolster mobile network coverage, Vodacom and Orange have established a joint venture focused on the DRC.

Why is DRC launching a mobile broadband project?

This venture is designed to improve mobile coverage and boost internet access where only 32.3% of the population currently enjoys mobile internet. The project aligns with the DRC's National Digital Plan Horizon 2025, which emphasizes digital accessibility and economic growth.

What is Vodacom & Orange's joint venture?

In a strategic move to bolster mobile network coverage, Vodacom and Orange have established a joint venture (JV) focused on the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC). This collaboration will center on constructing solar-powered mobile base stations in rural regions, expanding connectivity for millions who remain underserved.

How can the DRC bridge the digital divide?

Deploying and operating networks, particularly in deep rural areas, continues to be a significant challenge in the DRC. To bridge the digital divide and expand network coverage in underserved communities, the companies have pledged to jointly construct up to 2,000 new solar-powered base stations over six years, using 2G and 4G technologies.
